DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

4. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ferrier et al (US Patent NO 6,020,029) in view of Dutkewych et al (US Patent NO 4,144,119).

Ferrier et al teach the method for cleaning copper during manufacturing of multilayer boards.

The method comprises cleaning copper with a composition comprising an inorganic acid as claimed, persulfate salt as claimed and a surfactant as claimed.

The reference does not teach the use of phosphate salts.

However, Dutkewych et al teach that adding phosphates in the composition for treating copper comprising sulfuric acid and an oxidizer, e.g. the compositions similar to the composition of Ferrier et al, would reduce undesired attack on other metals presented on the board.

Having the combined teachings of Ferrier et al and Dutkewych et al, it would have been obvious to an ordinary artisan at the time the invention was made to include phosphate salts in the composition used in the method of Ferrier et al in order to reduce chemical attack and corrosion of metals.

As to claim 7, the cited references teach the ranges the claimed compounds which comprise the claimed ranges. It would have been obvious to an ordinary artisan at the time the invention was made to find optimum ranges for the disclosed components by routine experimentation.

As to claims requiring specific manufacturing steps of the boards:

The Examiner's position is that all these steps are the steps of conventional process of board manufacturing, except for the steps of cleaning copper.

Ferrier et al teach their composition for the use during manufacturing of boards.

It would have been obvious to an ordinary artisan at the time the invention was made to utilize a modified method of Ferrier et al in any conventional process of boards manufacturing requiring cleaning of copper in order to obtain improved adhesion properties and reduce attack on the metals.
